2. Behold, the foe doth meet and plot,
 Stand firm in one accord!
 Though war be fierce and darkness thick,
 Resist him in the Lord!
 If one thru fear should backward turn,
 He undermines the rest.
 Oh, do not let your brothers down,
 Nor by you be distressed.

3. The devil knows his time is short,
 He is the more enraged,
 And by his wiles would weaken us
 Before the battle's waged.
 The trials now more numerous are,
 The suffering e'en more sore,
 The force of hell opposing us
 More dreadful than before.

4. What should our posture be today
 In such a desperate hour?
 Should we our ease and pleasure seek
 And let the foe devour?
 Or with increasing conflict strong,
 Courageous to endure?
 'Tis here that life or death is won!
 Who will God's praise secure?

5. For Christ the Lord we then would stand,
 He is the Conqueror!
 For Him we would endure the pain
 Until the fight is o'er.
 The hour of triumph soon we'll see—
 The Lord will come again;
 If now we suffer for His sake,
 Then we with Him shall reign.
